Then you when recording animatronic reactions to audio simulations. You tick the checklist according to the animatronic responses. If animatronic attempts to scare you, you can force it to sweat with a laser. But you have to be careful not to use the taser too much as it reduces your overall profit. When you complete this game mode, you will be rewarded with cash. If you fail, you won't get any money. You can save the animatronic if you want. You get new animatronics after the first four day shifts in the game. The game features four animatronics in the series, namely Lefty, Scrap Baby, William Afton and Molten Freddie. But the use of these items in your restaurant has negative consequences that will lead to lawsuits. Fighting or losing in a lawsuit will cost you money. You can also accept sponsorship offers for money, but posting audio messages from these sponsors will distract you in the next game mode. The fourth game mode last game mode sees you maintaining the restaurant using your computer to perform tasks such as printing orders and sorting service schedules. Noise from audio recordings, a computer and a restaurant ventilation system can prevent you from guessing the correct position of animatronics. You can choose alternating ventilation systems that are quieter but won't be so effective in ventilating the restaurant. You can also upgrade your office equipment to quiet, but it will cost you more money. If you accept sponsorship you will get more money but the audio will attract animatronics and will make you unable to hear them.
